copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

During a mimic warfare in Prussia, in which military automobiles were used, three persons were killed and about 50 more injured by the power cars in their manoeuvres. Why wouldn't it be a good plan to adopt the "red devil" as the chief instrument of destruction in our armies? Peace conferences would soon go out of business.

Dr. Jackson was gifted in many ways and took an active part in many things. He was not a passive citizen, but his most distinguishing characteristic was that which was, perhaps, the least noticeable. He was constantly acting the role of peacemaker, and always so quietly and unobtrusively, it was hardly noticeable in these days when the "big stick" seems to be the rule of life.

THE RISE OF HUGHES.

Leadership develop very rapidly in our atmosphere. Note the appearance of Charles E. Hughes as the orator at the unveiling of the McKinley monument at Buffalo, Thursday. He is the governor of the most powerful state in the union, and serving so well in his office he is widely regarded as a presidential quantity. His tribute to McKinley showed the man of thought and character worthy of the place he holds. It ranks with the best appraisements that have been offered of one of the worthiest and most attractive men in our history.

And yet when Mr. McKinley died, only six years ago, Mr. Hughes was unknown outside of a small professional and church circle in New York. Mr. McKinley probably never heard of him. His work at the bar was successful and satisfactory, but had brought him no fame. He was not seeking fame. The respect of his fellow-lawyers and of his fellow-churchmen comprehended his full ambition.

Nor was the task out of which his fame grew one that promised fame at the time he set his hand on it. One or two lawyers of distinction had declined it, putting but a small value on it. But Mr. Hughes accepted it, and in his hands it soon attracted national attention. There were rooted in it evils of large proportions, and these he exposed in an able and merciless manner. So important were his services, indeed, that a money consideration did not cover them at all. The people of the state rewarded him by calling him to the governor's chair by a majority which in the circumstances was very large.

All of this was accomplished in a very short time. Who shall put a limit thereon on what the next ten months may bring forth in the national field? An important session of Congress is approaching, and many public questions will come up for discussion and action. Out of any of them may arise a new situation, and out of that situation may spring new leaders. Such a thing does not look likely, but it is not impossible. And the comforting feature of the matter is that whenever such an hour strikes with us we have a Hughes at hand, and he always responds.—Washington Star.

CURRENT COMMENT.

As a result of the meeting, if the convention was to be held today, Vermont's eight votes would go to Hughes. What may take place before next June, remains to be recorded.—St. Johnsbury Republican.

"Too many commissioners and boards in Vermont's state government" is the cry now from many quarters. There is good reason for the complaint but it is easier to establish ten commissions than to abolish one.—Northfield News.

Gov. Hughes of New York made a great impression upon the Vermonters who heard him at the fish and game banquet last week. He is a strong man with a good stiff backbone and a whole lot of common sense.—Morrisville News.

Contemporaries who use columns to tell of any state politics that developed at the fish and game banquet at Hurl Point are simply talking against time. The Journal will venture the assertion that not one single infinitesimal fact developed that everybody didn't know before, not one new alliance was formed, not one deal made. And yet people prattle about the fish and game league being a political organization.—Montpelier Journal.

P. R. Davis, of the firm of Mould & Davis of Morrisville met with a painful accident Monday, while superintending a piece of work in the stone sheds, although not sufficiently serious to detain him from business. A small piece of steel flew from a tool, striking him on the left side of the face, near the nose, inflicting a wound about an inch deep, cutting through so far that blood flowed freely from the nose and mouth. He went at once to a physician's office, where the steel was removed and the wound dressed. Although a painful injury, no serious results are anticipated, and Mr. Davis resumed work Tuesday afternoon.

DEFEAT DISCOURAGES MOORS.
Their Fighting Has Been Lowered, It Is Reported.

Tangler, Sept. 14.—Native advices received here report that the recent defeat of the Moors near Casablanca has greatly lowered the fighting spirit of the Arabs. On the other hand, it is declared that the Moors will seek revenge for their heavy losses. The Moors continue to sell captured Jews to their friends or others for small amounts.

An interesting feature of "The Red Mill," the big New York musical play from the Knickerbocker theatre, New York, is the sextette of Dutch Kiddles which proved one of the many special introductions in the Blossom & Herbert musical play. The six little girls form part and parcel of an intricate song number and are attired in the picturesque peasant dress with wooden shoes, so familiar to tourists in the villages of Holland. "The Kiddles" as they are termed, are fully equipped and have the special care of a well-known tutor. At the opera house tonight.

MONTPELIER

The town of Barre paid its United States deposit into the fund this week, the sum received at the treasurer's office being $6,588.18. The town of Holland has paid part of its fund, having divided it in two parts, paying $226.02 into the treasury.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. W. Chase of Woodbury were in the city yesterday on their way to Brookfield, where they were called by the death of D. E. Herrick, a relative. Mr. Chase received a dispatch saying that Mr. Herrick was dead as the result of falling from the roof of a barn, no further particulars being given.

Mrs. Carrie Peach Luns, wife of August L. Luns, a stone cutter, died on Thursday night at her home on Charles street after an illness of over ten months, in which she suffered severely, but with great courage. She was born 31 years ago in Constable, N. Y., her father being John Peach of Constable, and came here some time ago with her husband, living first at Hillside avenue. Her husband survives her and she leaves no children. She has one sister living in this city, Mrs. James Foley. The funeral took place from St. Augustine's church this morning, Rev. J. J. Cullion officiating, with burial in the Catholic cemetery.

WEBSTERVILLE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Cardick, who died Friday morning, will be held at the home of her son, John Cardick, at Websterville, Sunday, Sept. 15, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The remains will be taken to St. Sylvester, Quebec, on Monday morning for interment. Mrs. Cardick was a widow and was nearly 85 years of age.

MANY AFFLICTED.

It is surprising what a lot of people limp about suffering from corns. Suffering from such a cause is really unnecessary. Corns can be removed in two or three days without the least pain, injury or inconvenience. We understand that C. H. Kendrick & Co., Druggists, have something that is a sure cure for corns. If you are afflicted, better see them at once.
